SUMMARY

7th year DC from a D-II school who aligns primarily on the right side. Displays good length with solid speed and smooth hips. Able to play balanced and shows good explosiveness and acceleration. Plays like he has a chip on his shoulder and is very aggressive in contact with opponent. A competitor who finishes on most plays and has the mental toughness to bounce back after a blown assignment. Shows good strength for a DB and is able to consistently shed blocks and gain leverage on the ballcarrier. Able to seal the edge and uses good technique along with his size and strength to rip through a block. Is very physical at the LOS and uses arms to knock WR off route while using quick feet to stay parallel to the LOS. Show excellent ability in mirroring receivers in confined spaces and keeps hips open for quick COD. Is able to stay over top of a receiver in zone and has a quick and smooth zone turn. Shows great ball tracking and hand-eye coordination in zone coverage and has soft hands to come up with INTs. Allows big physical WRs to release inside in press coverage and doesn't have the burst to recover in time to make a play on the ball. Can get a little high in his BP, slowing his transition to break on a route. Uses trail technique rather than recognizing routes and will bite on double moves. Labors to keep up with faster WRs on vertical routes. Has difficulty with locating the ball in Man while he has his back to the QB and doesn't get his head around. Is slow to react to complex formations and can struggle in picking up the right man in bunch formations. Will miss his assignment in zone coverage, failing to release WR inside to pick up a back/TE in the flat. Takes poor angles to the ballcarrier and is easily fooled in space. Displays poor technique in preparation of a tackle as he fails to chop his feet and gets out of position. Overall, a DB who can be a starter in simple schemes where he can use his AA and toughness to beat WR rather than having to make proper reads in a complex zone scheme. His leadership and competitiveness will find him a place on a team but his reliance on AA is concerning for an aging player in the long-term.
